

Implementing Effective Pre-Construction Review (GUIDE 3) for Greater Site Productivity 1st Run (Virtual Classroom)

* Supported by UTAP ****

Objectives

Participants will appreciate how important is to plan upfront and Influence for downstream productivity. The appointment of Competent RE/ RTO is a legal and strategic decision as he represents the Client and Consultants in ensuring that the quality and safety of final product is deliver as per specification, drawings and specific requirements.

To be able to enhance site productivity for overall benefit, the RE/ RTO will need to have to an overview of the Client, Consultants requirements. In addition, the RE/ RTO will also need to understanding whether the appointed Contractor is competent to plan and schedule the site works to achieve the Client and Consultants intent right from the start and not during the project works.

Doing it right the first time and always should be the “mindset” to eliminate or minimize the foreseeable re-works, this will translate into cost saving and productivity. Hence, the Trainer will share how Developer/ Consultants/ Contractor can be benefited from implementing the “Pre-construction review” to achieve site productivity.
